Penelope Burk

Penelope Burk understands donors and what they want more deeply than just about anyone in the business. For over two decades, she and her innovative firm, Cygnus Applied Research, Inc., have conducted surveys and research studies with more than a quarter million donors. She has reached back into their lives to find out about the first time they gave, what motivates their philanthropy now, what their greatest and most frustrating experiences in giving are, and what their dreams are for their philanthropic future.

Penelope's contributions to the fundraising industry can be best summed up as a long list of "firsts":

- She was the first fundraising author to back up her ideas and solutions with evidence from donors
- The first to bring the problem of Donor Attrition to the attention of the fundraising industry, pointing out how much money charities were losing by failing to hold onto their donors
- The first to offer an evidence-based formula for keeping donors giving longer and inspiring them to make more generous contributions
- The first to document what leadership volunteers do best and how they can raise more money for their organizations by saying thank you the donor-centered way
- The first to document the real impact of the high rate of turnover among professional fundraisers and the first to bring innovative solutions to the table to keep fundraisers loyal, raising more money, and still leaving the office at 5 o'clock!

Harmonia Philanthropy

Lois Graveline

With over three decades of expertise and experience as a professional fundraiser, I live and breathe philanthropy in all forms. I am the proud founder of Harmonia Philanthropy, where I provide custom-tailored philanthropic experiences while deepening the relationships that exist between donors and charitable organizations. I do this by applying strategic direction and guidance that is rooted in compassion and genuine concern for the health and viability of charitable organizations across Canada. When I'm not assisting donors and charities realize their philanthropic goals, I am a volunteer with various organizations, I serve on the Planning Committees for Ignite Ottawa and PhilEx-specific initiatives with various Private Wealth Management companies and I am an active member with both AFP Canada and CAGP. As much as possible, I enjoy mentoring junior fundraisers entering the sector. Harmonia Philanthropy is really the perfect culmination of my profession and passion and capitalizes on my strengths as a relationship-builder, an innovative strategist and someone who possesses the strongest commitment to developing meaningful and high-impact relationships between donors and charities.

Lori Guenther Reesor, B. Math, MTS, DMin
